The Future...

The role and model of ministry is ever evolving in the Church of Scotland, especially as congregations and Presbyteries plan for and implement adjustments in their Ministry and Mission Planning. Some congregations are retaining the traditional Parish Minister model of ministry whilst some are planning for Team Ministries or Pioneering Ministries. Whilst the role of the Interim Minister traditionally follows an agreed list of criteria, it may be necessary at times to respond to the request of assistance into and/or in preparation of new models of ministry.

Where a Presbytery requests support from the Interim Ministry team but the request does not warrant a full time Interim Minister, the team have developed Interim Ministry Accompaniment (see definition below). This is a Presbytery request and does not require a congregation vote. It is a short-term intervention, culminating in a report being drafted for Presbytery and is carried out by two Interim Ministers working together.

Please note that whilst your primary deployments will be within the noted Presbyteries, based on business needs, you may be deployed beyond these Presbyteries, if and when required, following a conversation with your line manager. This requirement will feature in the contract of employment.

Interim Ministers live in their own homes and commute to each deployment, claiming travel expenses from the congregation. Where possible, it is preferable if Interim Ministers live near central to their primary region, although this is not mandatory.

Summary and definition of each form of Interim Ministry & Interim Ministry Accompaniment

Interim Ministry

Both Interim and Transition ministries have unique characteristics. They both share an emphasis on helping people and agendas to change and move forward, on recognising and celebrating the good things of the past, but finding positive and healthy expression of local church and effective witness to the Gospel within the life of the local community. Here is a summary of the interim ministry, as communicated to the Presbytery, Kirk Session and Congregations:

Interim Ministry (IM)

- One short term substantive placement up to two years (usually 12 – 24 months).
- The Interim Minister cannot apply for the charge directly following the period of interim ministry.
- The Interim Minister works with a vacant congregation until it is in a position in which Presbytery will lift the minister from the vacancy, or until Presbytery and Council take the view that progress has been made towards identified aims and objectives.
- An Interim Ministry Presentation is given to the congregation, by the Ministries Development Manager, who are then required to vote on whether to accept interim ministry and sustain their right of call for the period of interim ministry.
- The Interim Minister will be supported for the period of the appointment with a Transition Support Group (TSG). This will be made up of a fellow Interim/Transition Minister and a member of Presbytery.
- The Interim Minister is selected and deployed by the Ministries Development Manager.
- The Interim Minister will be line managed by the Ministries Development Manager.

Possible criteria for Interim Ministry:

- After a long or short ministry
- A need for development or clarity of direction
- After the death, illness or extended absence of a minister
- Changing parish composition
- After a pastoral tie is severed or dissolved
- After or during conflict

Interim Ministry Accompaniment (IMA):

- Short term support and not usually more than 6 months and/or more than 3 or 4 contact meetings with the congregation.
- IMA does not lead church services or undertake any pastoral duties.
- A presentation to the congregation is not required.
- IMA is a 'non-embedded' Interim Ministry, whereby the IM team 'lends' its skills, expertise and experience to the wider church (congregations and Presbyteries).
- Presbytery discusses IMA with the Ministries Development Manager. The Ministries Development Manager will then deploy, usually, two Interim Ministers to work with the Presbytery to develop an insight report of the congregational issue.

Possible criteria for IMA:

- Facilitating decision-making processes, exploration of options, conflict resolution or 'space' for listening and discernment
- Enabling people to be heard

- Allowing recognition and acknowledgement of issues which need addressed
  - Supporting the Interim Moderator and appropriate Presbytery Committee
  - Assisting congregation(s) / Presbytery in achieving outcomes
  - Resourcing movement towards new ways of working
  - Exploring along with the congregation(s) / Presbytery the dynamics that are operating.
